

Ghost Town Reflection

By: 4th Grade Student A

I learned that my ghost town is WAY more interesting than what I first thought of it, now I know so much more about my ghost town! The ghost town I studied was Irwin & Marble (more Irwin than Marble though). At first I thought that my ghost town only mined silver, now I know that my ghost town mined silver, silver wire, ruby, and silver ore. I also learned that Irwin is 15 mi. away from Marble. Marble is full of people even though it busted in 1941 and Irwin is less populated but still has a couple of houses in it.

Anyway I should start telling you less about my ghost town and more about how I presented it.

First off I made a quiz and a slide show.

I added my slide show because I spent a lot of time working on it and poured in my knowledge. I also added my quiz because I really like how me and my group (Student B, Student C and I) formatted our ghost town presentation and drew in people to share our knowledge with them. We also used our quiz to look at the responses and by looking at the responses we could figure out what people were getting wrong so we could make sure we taught them really well. We made 2 models as well because there was so much snow at Irwin there was no other way to explain it. I think our group really “fit” together because Student B would make most of the physical models and pictures and Student C made most of the physical writing pieces and I made most of the digital pieces, more or less we really worked together well.

If I had to do something better I would make more physical pieces but I didn't really have time for that.

That is my ghost town reflection, hope you enjoy!
