Dear Class,

I am really excited about your creative ideas for the 'ghost town project. I love how passionate you are about recess and the new snow. I loved reading about your research questions this morning.

One of my favorite parts of our day is the morning share when I learn more about you. I am proud of you for your flexibility with the portfolio project as we trouble shoot with Google, iPads and our new Chrome-books.

I like your playlists and your picnics on the rug. I really enjoyed seeing you on the slopes and when your group arrived back in the fenced area during Ski for P.E. I appreciate the way you stick

With me when we leave the classroom. I see you looking for me on our way to the CFA or at a Titan Trait assembly and I don't worry too much about losing someone.

There are a couple things that are getting me down. I was bummed to hear about some of our class being chatty during STEM and sliding when they were ~~supposed~~<sup>expected</sup> to line up at recess. Both of these events were with subs and I expect you to Seek the Peak and ~~represent~~<sup>represent</sup> our class well, especially with subs. I am also frustrated that our classroom is sometimes left a mess at the end of the day because that feels disrespectful.

I want you to be wild, fun-loving adventurous kids and I also want you to be respectful learners and listeners.

Sincerely, Your Teacher,
Miss Brynn
